Independent Cattlemen's Assn. Resists New Powers for TAHC, Former Gov. Briscoe Who Opposes Federal Spending, Seeks Solution

Austin—Rep. Bruce Gibson delayed a House vote on his brucellosis control bill Monday to allow time to work on a compromise with former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a Uvalde cattleman who had urged a halt in federal spending to combat the livestock disease.

Gibson, D-Godley, sought and received a two-week postponement, moving the date for floor action to April 25.

"Gov. Briscoe says he has some new language to compromise this thing out. He wants to meet with me," Gibson said.

"If he sincerely believes he has a new approach, I am willing to discuss it with him . . . As a former governor, you've got to give him a certain respect."

The bill provides for both testing and quarantine of animals that test out as having the disease.

"The essence is quarantine and testing. I can't compromise on that," Gibson said.

He said he felt a delay would not harm chances for the bill's passage and might even help.

"They (other legislators) have been lobbying pretty hard on it," Gibson said. Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas (IATC) has come on representatives saying Gibson's bill "is discriminatory and places inequitable financial burdens on cattlemen in this state."

Gibson said the association also had "orchestrated a lot of contacts from the (House members') districts."

The Independent Cattlemen's Association released the following explanation of their position last week.

The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas has come on record opposing S.B. 866 by Sen. Bob Glasgow and H.B. 701 by Rep. Bruce Gibson because the bills give the Texas Animal Health Commission too much power.

"These bills, if passed, would give the TAHC authority and power to submit any set of rules and regulations appearing to eradicate brucellosis," says Cliff Boucher, executive director of the association. "We would prefer allowing part of the power of writing regulations to remain in the legislature with elected officials. Instead, these bills allow only the governor's political appointees to govern the health programs of the cattle industry of Texas."

The bills were introduced because of pending court litigation ruling the TAHC was adopting regulations when it did not have authority to do so, explains Boucher. With the authority delegated by these bills, the commission will have even greater power over cattle movement and sale in this state, he says.

"With rumors of the threat of a brucellosis quarantine by USDA, many in the cattle industry feel blacklisted from accepting this kind of power vested in the TAHC," Boucher says.

"However, it was U.S. President Ronald Reagan who directed USDA to phase out the brucellosis program. We stand behind his recommendation."

With the power created by these bills the TAHC intends to enforce a stricter set of rules, he says. These stricter rules divide the state into two areas, east and west. East Texas cattle producers will operate under more stringent requirements for cattle movement than West Texas producers. Extensive testing and vaccination will be required before cattle may be sold into the western section of the state.

"These rules and regulations will serve as a trade barrier within our state," Boucher warns. "Because of the restrictions and added compliance costs required of cattlemen in East Texas, S.B. 866 and H.B. 701 will place cattle producers in East Texas at a great disadvantage, inhibit cattle trade and continue to require dependence on an unreliable test as the measure of herd health."

Boucher told IGA members to show their opposition to these bills by contacting members of the State Legislature to encourage the bills' defeat.

Livestock Producers Need To Be On Screwworm Alert

Three confirmed screwworm cases about 100 miles south of Reynosa in Mexico brings on an increased need for Texas livestock producers to be on the lookout for possible screwworm infestations, Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, Austin, said.

The three cases are within a few miles of each other, and were confirmed during the last two days of March and April 2. Sterile screwworm flies and cattle movement and sale in this state, he says.

Argentine Wool Subsidy Exposed

A U.S. Department of Commerce on a countervailing duty petition filed against Argentina by the National Wool Growers Association (NWGA) has resulted in a 4.95 percent duty on certain wools from that country.

The announcement, last week supported the NWGA's allegations that Argentina wools were being subsidized to sell on the American market at lower prices than other wools. The amount of the duty that will be imposed because of the ruling is equal to the amount of the subsidy.

Out-of-State Tracks Intense Interest in Texas Racing Noted

Frisco—Revelations that the opposition to Texas horse racing is in frequent contact with out-of-state racing interests reinforces the argument for bringing the industry to Texas, the head of the Texas Horse Racing Association said Friday.

"The fact that the leader of the Anti-Grime Council of Texas has been talking to the Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation in Youngstown, Ohio, gives to the heart of our argument for Texas pari-mutuel horse racing," said R.F. (CONT. ON PAGE 4A)

Bill Would Boost Texas Ag Industries

Austin—Senator Ted Lyon today announced his plan that is designed to help Texas farmers and ranchers get back on the road to economic recovery.

Lyon's Senate Bill 266 is aimed at developing agricultural processing industries on a county level, that will be owned by producers. The industries will be financed through bond sales that will be administered by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"When you see the prices in the supermarkets it is hard to believe that farmers and ranchers aren't making (CONT. ON PAGE 4A)

Bill Would Boost Texas Ag Industries

any money," Lyon said. "But the prices in the grocery stores and the prices that the farmers receive for their commodities have very little in common."

Lyon said that he hopes his bill will help to solve this problem.

"Senate Bill 386 will allow agricultural producers to form groups and finance their own processing and storage facilities," Lyon said. "If the producers can get into the processing and marketing business they will be one step closer to the consumer."

"Government leaders and the consuming public must be made aware that their own economic well-being is directly linked to a strong, viable agriculture economy. Overall economic life cannot be cured until the farm sector again begins to prosper," Lyon said. "I feel that this plan could represent a major step toward economic recovery for Texas farmers and ranchers."

Livestock Producers Need To Be On Screwworm Alert

especially treated attractant pellets called SWASS are being distributed in the area. Inspections are also being increased along the Texas-Mexico border to detect any possible screwworm infestations.

"Although the screwworm cases are 100 miles below the Texas border, we need to keep a constant watch for possible screwworm infestations. This is especially true for producers within 100 miles of the Texas-Mexico border," Dr. Holcombe said.

Mailing kits for use in submitting suspected samples are available at Texas Animal Health Commission area offices, county agent's offices, and other outlets.

Texas had only six confirmed cases of screwworms during 1982. Rapid reporting of the cases helped to confine the infestation area within a 18-mile radius.

"We need the continued cooperation of livestock producers now in submitting suspected screwworm samples to the U.S. Department of Agriculture fly laboratory at Mission," Dr. Holcombe said.

Out-of-State Tracks Intense Interest In Texas Racing Noted

Phillips, Jr., Texas Horse Racing Association president.

"Our argument all along has been 'don't send Texas money and Texas tax revenues to Youngstown, Ohio, or anywhere else. Let's keep it here in Texas where it belongs.'"

Phillips noted that the DeBarollos own more than 90 percent of the track in Bossier City, La.

"For years, we've suspected that the out-of-state interest had more than a passing anxiety about Texas having a racing within her borders," Phillips continued. "But in all the years I have been here, I have never had it brought home as graphically as it was yesterday."

"The question is whether pari-mutuel horse racing is good for Texas. We believe that it is. It is clear from the stories of the past two days that horse racing in Texas will not be good for the folks in Youngstown, Ohio," Phillips said.

Phillips issued his statement in response to action by the House Committee on Urban Affairs which subpoenaed the telephone records of Allan May, director of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas.

Those records showed 16 telephone calls to the Youngstown number for the DeBarollos company.

Phillips also noted that other out-of-state racing interests are following the legislation in Texas. He released copies of correspondence expressing concerns from New Mexico about the developments in Texas.

"I think that other states have a right to be concerned about what Texas is doing," Phillips said. "But at least in the case of the Jockey Club of Ruidoso-Sunland, they are taking a positive and forceful approach to staying out of our business here in Texas."

"I appreciate their wisdom and their restraint. In the long run, racing in Texas will be good for the nation's racing industry. It's good for the breeders and the breeders when we have more places to race, and the jockey club clearly sees this."

Argentine Wool Subsidy Exposed

Board of the National Wool Growers Association, said he thought the duty imposed would bring the Argentine wools more in line with the domestic pricing structure. According to Rousselot, the subsidy on the Argentine wool had an unfavorable impact on the U.S. consumer.

"It helped to increase the payments to American growers under the U.S. Wool Act, and thereby raised the costs of the program," he said. "These payments increase when our wool growers have to take a lower market price for their wool," Rousselot pointed out.

The imposition of the duties identified on the countervailing petition is retroactive to the preliminary decision rendered by Commerce on January 12, 1983.

On a companion issue, Representative Tom Loeffler (R-TX) introduced legislation late last year calling for a one year, 10 percent duty on both Argentine and Uruguayan wools. That legislation awaits further action by Congress.

Stuph & Thangs

payments due, etc. This time it gave out with a statement about a $40,000 loan, which it had kept inside its machinery for some four years. The man who owed the money had had no notice and so kept quiet and you can imagine how the bankers felt to discover this guy had used their money all this time and paid naught!

Then there was the tale about the guy who had worked for E. F. Hutton and when he left he had the codes that penetrated their super secret research information. With his home computer and the telephone he filched those secrets at will. And there are other scary tales about how inactive bank accounts have been rifled by outsiders and insiders who knew the code and milked 'em for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

All these things were interesting, even sometimes amusing, until we encountered the abolition of paper banking's own self. You see, we have a profit sharing retirement trust for our employees run by the company board of directors. Now these trusts are closely watched by the Labor Dept., and especially the Internal Revenue Service. Occasionally they decide to audit such things, and if you have ever been through an audit, well, IRS you know they want to see every invoice, bank stub, cancelled check, EVERYTHING.

We had put some of the Trust's excess cash temporarily in what they call a Super NOW Account. When we got the statement there were no cancelled checks or deposit slips. Now in our benign ignorance we aint trustin' nobody nor no machine to reconcile our bank accounts, and we don't figure the IRS would be any more lenient. We yelled. We checked around and everyone agreed that the cancelled checks were the property of the depositor and by rights the banks had no right to shred 'em. Especially those the IRS might like to see. Can you imagine what any self respecting IRS agent would say if a retirement trust showed $11,900 withdrawn with no cancelled check to account for where it went and for what?

Tipel: Needless to say our trust does not belong to that little club any longer and our shock was complete when we read the fine print in which they said they would not return cancelled checks, or deposit slips. Be sure you read the fine print folks, and if the gobbledy gook is beyond you, see your lawyer. There are some folks who say that one day there will be no certificates issued for stocks and bonds, etc., you will simply have a credit in someone's computer. But what kind of shape are you gonna be in if someone pushes the wrong button accidentally or on purpose? All this paper flyin' around don't bother us near as much as no paper flyin' around.

Ever thine,
The Eddier.
P.S.: Uncle Dunk says the way the politicians are arguin' about how much money the Govmint has and how much money they aint got and how much the Govmint is gonna be, etc., jist goes to prove that figgers don't lie; but that liars can sure figger. - Thassall, Brothers!

Tower Sponsors New Soviet Grain Pact Negotiations Start

bought as much as 15.5 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat per year and has depended on the U.S. for 70 percent of its total needs of these commodities. Last year, the Soviet Union purchased only the minimum level of corn and wheat from the U.S. under a one-year extension of the previous grain agreement. Recently, the Soviet Union signed a long-term grain agreement with five other nations that have filled the void created by the declining U.S. share of the market. Tower said.
Senator Tower also pointed out that a long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union would help restore the health of U.S. agricultural exports.
"Increasing the export of grain should be our first priority in restoring economic health to our farmers and rural communities. The efficiency of the U.S. farmer has allowed us to enjoy a comparative advantage in many agricultural commodities, establishing the U.S. as the world's leading exporter of agricultural goods. Taking advantage of this efficiency by retaining established markets, developing new ones and recovering past market shares is crucial to long-term stability in American agriculture," Tower said.
"The President's decision in April 1981 to lift the previous Soviet grain embargo, combined with his recent signing of contract sanctity legislation last year, demonstrates a wise, cautious, yet firm, move to recover our market position in the Soviet Union. I feel a new long-term agreement is a natural step in continuing to re-establish this valuable agricultural market," Tower continued.
"Our failure to compete with the aid force of our highly efficient agricultural industry and a renegotiated long-term grain agreement, would only hurt American farmers and encourage the Soviet Union to continue to seek other suppliers. This commitment to renegotiate the current long-term agreement will provide a base for re-establishing this key market for U.S. farm goods," Tower concluded.

Commodities Comment

Week Ending April 7, 1983
It seems that the one common denominator for all markets in general is the belief that lower interest rates are on the way and it is bullish. Any type of statement from a "senior Federal Reserve official" indicating a drop in the prime rate immediately causes a rally in the futures market. Grains, livestock, metals, stock index futures, currencies, and so forth, have all benefited in recent days to just those types of thoughts. As a matter of fact, on sharp breaks the public and commodities come in and quickly scoop up cheaper prices. The month of April sure looks like a pivotal month. Keep your eye on the Federal Reserve and listen to Paul Volcker.

The grains continue to be dominated by the bulls. There is really very little negative news around to depress prices. I guess the only thing that is negative is the price level at which we are now trading. The general opinion is that with such a cut in acreage due to the PIR program any crop problems will be very bullish. Consequently, traders enter the market on price breaks hoping to "get a handle" on a bull move as we enter spring planting. At these prices I'm not so bullish on new crop corn but I'm quite bullish on new crop beans. Good demand for soybean meal, an increase in animal numbers and a hot dry summer will give us a real good bull move before fall. At this writing November beans closed at $8.85, July wheat $5.74 and December corn $3.04.

The Mercantile Exchange has a real bull on its hands. It's the cattle market! Due to the continued wet weather in the southwest and mid-west the cattle market has moved sharply higher in recent days. Demand has been excellent and the commercials have been the best buyers. I have been very bullish on the cattle since December and all my price objectives have been met. The June cattle option feels as if it is "near a top." I would not suggest a short sale at this time but June cattle will struggle to hold a price over $72.00. The hogs and bellies finally rallied this week! It's about time. People are talking about a seasonal upmove in the pork complex and they're right. I guess the question is from what level will the rally occur. I look for heavy selling in the pork complex at these levels or a little higher. At this writing June cattle closed at $70.07, June hogs $68.27 and July bellies $72.82.

The metals are a real question mark. Silver and gold still appear to be liquidating markets with much lower prices still a possibility. Near-term my guess is that the direction of oil prices will be the main fundamental force affecting gold. My bias is to stand aside at this time in the metal market. Volume is light and trading is erratic. I don't like to see either of these two things when I'm trying to make money trading futures.

Which way from here?
I'll continue to drag my feet about being a "bull." I still feel that a break in the Dow and the interest rate futures will occur during the month of April. I'm just not willing to be a buyer of much of anything at current price levels. I'd like to be a bull but I feel a sharp break in most markets will occur.

Grazing System Should Boost Ranch Production

College Station—A grazing management system which incorporates some basic principles will help provide for the needs and growth requirements of both plants and animals, says a ranch specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Grazing systems depend on the principles of proper forage use, proper season of use, proper grazing distribution, and proper class and kind of livestock," points out Dr. Wayne Hanselka of Corpus Christi. "The two basic systems, deferred rotation and short duration, both have positive and negative sides and should be planned according to an individual's situation."

Such individual considerations include the number of pastures, carrying capacity of pastures, livestock management practices, type and condition of range vegetation, and a rancher's objectives, notes Hanselka.

"Deferred rotation involves one-half or more of the acreage being grazed at a time explains the specialist. "A pasture's grazing time is equal to or longer than the rest period. Deferred rotation allows beef cattle to graze more selectively, giving optimum livestock performance. Using four pastures with three herds is an example of this system."

In short duration grazing systems, livestock are concentrated on less than one-half of the total land area. The long rest periods exceed the length of the grazing period. Short duration systems give desirable plants more opportunity to improve, says Hanselka.

"Removing too much grass too quickly results in a loss of vigor in the grass stand," he warns. "Thus, length of rest periods is an important factor to consider. The minimum rest period should be three to four months for rangelands in humid areas and up to 12 months under more arid conditions. Both livestock and vegetation production will be less than with continuous grazing if the rest period is too short."

Under long rest periods, grasses mature and decline in quality. While this may be good for grasses, livestock performance is reduced unless animals got supplemental feed, says Hanselka. Beef cattle perform best when they have maximum opportunity to graze tender forage and regrowth.

The specialist recommends the deferred rotation system for ranchers during steady range improvement and maintenance while obtaining maximum production per animal.

"Short duration systems are more suitable for ranchers wanting rapid improvements in grass production and composition, and who are willing to sacrifice some in livestock production," he points out. "Use this system intermittently for improvement or maintenance of range condition."

Of course, ranchers must consider water facilities, sufficient working past and labor once a system is selected. Hanselka advises ranchers to closely observe livestock and vegetation responses and to record these changes when necessary. "Flexibility is the key to the success of any grazing management system," says Hanselka.

Tractor accidents abound in spring, with overturns still causing most tractor-related deaths, says a safety specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Use care when operating a tractor on irregular terrain, and beware of sudden bumps due to rut and washouts. Operate a tractor at a reduced speed on rough ground and avoid quick turns. Never allow others on a tractor, and wear a seatbelt if your tractor has a rollover protective structure.

Fed Cattle Open Mostly Higher, Hogs Were Mixed

Areas from bad weather and muddy lots reducing gains. Muddy cattle were again a big factor and several points reported a ready outlet to feeder buyers on good to choice steers scaling 1,000 to 1,050 pounds. Slaughter cows and bulls registered very little change. Monday's receipts were only slightly larger than a week ago and Monday's estimated cattle kill at 110,000 was 11,000 above last week and 13,000 above a year earlier.

Hog prices were mixed at the various markets with mostly points reporting better prices on the earlier rounds and some sharp advances. There was tendency for slow and weaker trade on the later rounds at some points. Hog receipts Monday were off a few thousand from a week ago. Monday's hog kill at 318,000 was 28,000 above last week and 122,000 ahead of last year.

Peanut Outlook

Peanut farmers have the privilege of dealing with a more balanced supply-demand situation than most other farmers, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. This, along with lower production costs, points to an improved profit picture for the 1983 peanut crop. Farmers will again have a national average support level of $650 per ton for their '83 crop grown under the farm quota poundage program. Additional peanuts will have a support price of $150 per ton.

A WOMAN HAD ordered a book from a large publishing company. Several weeks later she received the following letter: "Many thanks for your recent order. We wish we could fill it at once, but improvements in our procedures will mean a delay in shipping."

Henry Wright Not a Pyromaniac, It's Just Fire Ecology!

Lubbock-Certain conditions must be met before Henry A. Wright will set a fire. He applies the 40/80 rule to create fire lines - 40-80 percent humidity, temperatures of 40-60 F. and winds less than 10 mph. To set the headfire, Wright looks for temperatures in the 70s winds of 8-15 mph and humidity between 25-40 percent.

Wright is not a victim of pyromania but rather an international authority and pioneer on the use of fire as a range management tool. Co-author of the book, "Fire Ecology: United States and Southern Canada," Wright spent 10 years in research, traveling throughout the country clearing land with fire. He found fire better than both man and wildlife.

The Texas Tech University Range and Wildlife Department chairman wrote the book along with fellow range specialists Arthur W. Bailey of the University of Alberta and Edmonston. The 500-page illustrated publication examines the historical impact of fire on most plant species in the U.S. and Southern Canada and details principles of prescribed fire in ecosystem management.

"We won't see the full potential use of fire in managing grass and shrubs for another 10 years. It will take some 20-30 years for fire to meet its full potential in managing forests. Foresters hesitate to use fire because these plant communities have been protected from fire for so long," Wright said.

Aspects of brush management by fire which have hindered its potential use are inexperienced in prescribed burning and the fear that a fire might get away. However, more federal agencies related to the environment and environmental issues are conducting instruction in controlled burning as a viable means of brush control.

In 1982 more than 100,000 acres of Texas rangeland were managed by fire. Wright predicts that number doubling in 1983. "Interest in fire as a management tool picked up in 1975 because of public opposition to chemicals. Fire was, and is, seen as a more natural control which is also more economical," Wright said. The researchers said contracting for a burn specialist costs approximately $5-10 per acre - even less if an individual is trained and can do it independently. Cost of chemical or mechanical control generally runs $15-20 per acre.

Nature, not man, first used fire as an effective tool in managing range vegetation. Chemicals, man's creation, were once thought to be the answer in ridding rangeland of unwanted brush. And, in some cases, chemicals are the best means to control brush species. "Fire is another management tool. It is not a cure-all," Wright said. "We really need chemicals in treating certain areas where there is no alternative."

For fire to be a successful management tool, an area must contain at least 1,000 pounds per acre of grass, preferably 2,000 pounds. Wright said: "The guarantee the fire spreading to effectively manage the undesirable plant species. In areas where there is insufficient grass to carry a fire, spraying and churning are used with fire as a firm. Rio Vista has completed two schools and plans to hold three schools each year. "We are overwhelmed by the success of these schools," reports Dr. Bruce Perry, President of RVI. "We have had to turn away students at both schools, and we already have enrollments for our June and October classes". Students, mostly veterinarians and ranchers, have come from South Africa, Italy, Argentina, Venezuela, Mexico and throughout the United States. Rio Vista is especially pleased at the overall competency and success rates of their graduates. Unlike most other training courses available through many of the university systems, Rio Vista offers a large amount of "hands-on" training. A student will collect about 45 superovulated cows and implant about 100 embryos before completing the three week commercial course which is designed to train a person to enter directly into the embryo transfer business. According to Dr. Lloyd Donaldson, Graduates of Rio Vista's commercial course in embryo transfer have come from South Africa, Venezuela, Argentina, Italy, Mexico, and throughout the United States.

DWI BILL

The DWI bill currently being debated in the Texas Legislature includes the elimination of "deferred adjudication." The practical effect of deferred adjudication is to allow alleged DWI offenders to continue to drive, serve no jail term, receive no insurance penalty and have no record of a drunk driving offense, says an official of the Texas Safety Association and a safety specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Under the proposed legislation, probation for first offense DWI would still be allowed, but it would be part of a driver's record for future DWI court action.

Director of Rio Vista Schools, the most exciting news is that to date all graduates from the commercial course have reported successes on their own after returning home.

Patience is the greatest of all shock absorbers. The only thing you can get in a hurry is trouble.

Dan & Jo Hollis, Henderson, TX, were volume buyers at the Rio Grande Valley Red Brangus Sale, March 19 in Mercedes.

Stillwaters Beefs Up Red Brangus Herd

Stillwaters Red Brangus beefed up their Red Brangus herd by the addition of embryo interests in seven proven Red Brangus females from El Toro Rojo

Included in the transaction are PFR 284/8, highest valued cow in the Red Brangus breed today and Bar H 79/4, whose bull calves have achieved an average weaning weight of 700 pounds, average WDA of 3.5 pounds, and a 205 day average of 685 pounds. Her female offspring have averaged 555 pounds at weaning and have a 205 day weight of 685 pounds.

Other females included in the transaction carry equal performance records and include the dam of JMB Red River Chief, a young herd sire prospect whose average daily gain record was 1.68 pounds per day and Lancer, another great Red Brangus herd sire.

Dr. Franklin House of Stillwaters and Dr. Leonard Shockey of El Toro Rojo hope that by combining these proven bloodlines with those of the breeds top two herd sires, EXTRA and PFR 77/5, their offspring will continue to make headlines and pay off both at the scales and at the sales.

TEXAS LONGHORN NEWS

Texas Longhorn to Benefit Museum New Headquarters

Ft. Worth — A select group of registered Texas Longhorn cattle will sell in a historic "barn raising" event with all proceeds going to the building fund of the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America (TLBAA). The sale, named the "National Headquarters and Museum Fund-Raising Sale", is set for 12 noon, August 12, 1983, at the amphitheater of the MGM Grand Hotel in Reno, Nevada. The sale will be held in conjunction with the annual convention of the TLBAA. The unique fund raising event was announced by Dr. L.V. Baker, Jr., Elk City, Oklahoma, president of TLBAA.

The new headquarters and museum for TLBAA will be constructed in Ft. Worth, Texas, near the site of the old Chisolm Trail.

All cattle in the sale are being donated by members of TLBAA. Consignments will be selected by a sale committee from photographs and production information provided by breeders. The information must be received in the association office by May 10, 1983.

The construction of a new headquarters and museum is a result of the continued interest in registered Texas Longhorn cattle and the explosive growth of TLBAA. In the last five years, membership in TLBAA and cattle registered in the association have increased by about 300 percent. In the last year, membership has increased from 1,200 to near 2,300. The new building will serve as worldwide headquarters for America's original beef breed and the museum will house artifacts and memorabilia from early Western America including the trail drives.

The "National Headquarters and Museum Fund-Raising Sale" is managed by TLBAA and will be auctioneered by Colonel Eddie Wood, Wynnewood, Oklahoma. For more information, contact Charles Dooley, Executive Director, TLBAA, 3701 Airport Freeway, Fort Worth, Texas, 76111, (817) 881-4877.

TLBAA Marketing Seminars

The first of 10 TLBAA Marketing Seminars was conducted at Tallahassee, Florida, February 19. Speakers present were Charles Dooley, TLBAA Executive Director, Darci Dickinson, Dickinson Ranch, and Stan Searle, owner/publisher of the Texas Longhorn Journal.

The Southeastern Texas Longhorn Regional Association turned out in good numbers to support the event. This original program was designed to help TLBAA members develop local markets and outlets for selling their stock. It was discussed by many, that the better each person can successfully market their cattle, the more stable each person is in the industry. The ability to personally market all surplus Texas Longhorn cattle is a stable industry factor.

Future Marketing Seminars will be held in California, Colorado, Kansas, Texas and other states which have not been finalized at this time.

The TLBAA Marketing Committee has just completed a brochure on cattle marketing, which will go out to each TLBAA member as a membership service. This brochure is designed to inform and direct members in the fine art of marketing quality cattle.

For more information on marketing your cattle, contact: Charles Dooley, TLBAA, 3701 Airport Freeway, Ft. Worth, TX 76111.

TLBAA 20th Annual Convention Update

Plans are continuing to be made for the TLBAA 20th Annual Convention in Reno, Nevada, August 10-13, 1983.

public speaking, show rings, etc. Members of the TLBAA Youth Committee include Gary Henry, Chairman; Gene Bartnicki, Beth Thatcher, Jan Koehn, Gary Bloomer, Richard Crist, Sue Singletary, Chuck Knight, Mike Donley and Cheryl Slakey.

The purpose of the youth group is to give our youth the opportunity to become totally and completely involved with Texas Longhorns and gain the knowledge and experience necessary to become successful breeders of Texas Longhorns and an integral part of the TLBAA.

The TLBT program is exciting and unique! To be a complete success, as much participation by the TLBAA as possible is needed. Our youth will both enjoy and benefit from this program with membership support and encouragement. For more information call or write any of the committee members listed or the TLBAA office.

The schedule for the Convention is being finalized at this time. Committee meetings can be scheduled on Wednesday, August 10, before 11:00 a.m. and from 1:30 p.m. Schedule the time of your committee meeting with Susan if you plan to have one.

MORE LIVE CALVES

On most cow outfits in the Great American Ranch Country, getting a live calf, unassisted, is the most important thing that can happen. Registered Texas Longhorn bulls give you more live calves and you won't be up all night worrying during the calving season. Calves sired by Texas Longhorn bulls weigh about 40 to 60 pounds and generally cause no problems for cows or heifers.
